

PAGAN newsletter 1989

The UNDP-Unesco Project BUR/81/032 on Conservation of Cultural Heritage of Burma was completed at the end of 1988. Due to the present political situation in Burma, now Myanmar, the approval of the next three year phase, BUR/86/019, was delayed and the international co-operation has been inactive in Pagan since September 1988.

At that date however, the field work on the Inventory of Pagan Monuments was near completion, and the first archaeological map of Pagan could be drawn, showing 2,230 monuments at their precise location. This map, originally drawn at 1:10,000 scale but reduced here at 1:20,000, constitutes the present issue of the Pagan Newsletter. It is still a provisional edition, since some 30 more monuments, though mostly unexcavated brick mounds, may be added in the final versions of the map and of the inventory.

The preliminary results of the inventory concern these 2230 monuments, out of which 192 date, in their present form, from later periods (15th to 20th centuries AD, since monuments from the 14th century have been included in the "Pagan period monuments", because of their close similarity in type, style and construction, although they were built after the fall of the Pagan dynasty).

This leaves a total of 2038 monuments, which can be typologically classified as follows :

previously listed but now totally disappeared :	6
unexcavated brick mounds :	151
temples :	911	(with mural paintings : 347)
stupas :	524
monasteries :	415
others :	31

i do not have a large-format scanner, so i could not include the map that came with this edition of the newsletter.

I have instead included the later 1992 UNESCO map, which contains much the same data.
